ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of abstracting information through object interfaces is described. The object interfaces are used to present platform device information in a preboot service environment. Firmware tables such as Advanced Configuration and Power Interface and System Management Basic Input/Output System may be used to auto-configure diagnostic test suites through an abstracted software interface.